Child Abuse Prevention Month

Statement from Executive Director Gail Weil, LCSW, CADC

“Child abuse prevention month is critical for bringing attention to the issue of child abuse. Child abuse occurs at every level in our society, regardless of income, skin color, or religion and since children are at the mercy of their parents or caregivers, that makes them an especially vulnerable population.

That is why programs such as Intact Families are so critical to our nation’s children, families and communities. Our intact specialists work closely with families to support and strengthen them while mitigating risky behaviors, so that children may remain in the home.

Prevention Programs such as CYN’s Darkness to Light are also needed to bring awareness to the silent epidemic of child sexual abuse.”

Respectfully,

Gail Weil, Executive Director

What CYN is Doing

- ⇒ Case management—monitor families weekly to ensure that the families are provided and linked with needed services.
- ⇒ Linkage with substances abuse treatment programs—Referrals for both inpatient and outpatient drug treatment programs.
- ⇒ Counseling—Program provides weekly counseling for adults, children, couples and families both in home and out-of-home.

- ⇒ Community linkage services—Families are referred to a number of community-based services, including: medical services, counseling, drug/alcohol treatment support groups, food pantries, housing, employment training and continuing education programs.
