

CYN CONNECTION

APRIL 2026

INSIGHTS AND UPDATES ON Real Stories. Real Support. Real Progress.

A Note from our Chief Executive Officer Gail Weil, LCSW, CADC

Dear Friends,

Mental health is as important as physical health, and it's something everyone has to pay attention to at some point, even if the need doesn't always look the same.

At CYN, that shows up in very practical ways. People come to us with specific challenges, and our role is to help them work through those in ways that carry into their daily lives. That might mean helping a student manage anxiety well enough to stay in class, or supporting a parent who is trying to respond differently in a stressful moment.

Across our programs, the focus is on building skills like communication, coping, and decision-making in ways that people can actually use in their daily lives.

May is Mental Health Awareness Month, and it's an opportunity to be more direct about what this work looks like and why access to care matters.

Thank you for your continued interest in CYN and the role mental health plays in our community.

Warmly,

What's New For Growing Resilient Teens?

Out at the farm, the Growing Resilient Teens program is coming together in a way that really reflects the needs of the teens in the group.

Joey and Fatima, both CYN therapists, built the curriculum based on what they're seeing in real time. Sessions focus on skills like communication, coping strategies, and managing stress. Since a lot of participants are hesitant to try new things, they start with guided deep breathing to help everyone settle in, then encourage each teen to give the activity a try at least once.

The group also has a say in how things run. Teens are invited to suggest activities, and those ideas are often incorporated into future sessions. It gives them some ownership and helps build trust.

What's been noticeable is the shift that happens during the sessions. Many teens show up tired or stressed. As the time goes on, that often changes. Being outside, spending time with the animals, and having space for one-on-one conversation with a therapist makes a difference. Joey and Fatima also work with the Susanna Farms' owner to weave discussion topics into the farm activities, so conversations happen more naturally.

It's practical, steady work that helps teens build skills they can actually use.

Join Our Monthly Giving Community

The people who come to CYN aren't looking for one moment of support. They need consistency. Someone to meet with them week after week, a place to come back to, and services that don't disappear when things get difficult.

That kind of care is built over time. Monthly giving is one way to make that possible.

- $24 a month can support ongoing mentoring for a young person navigating the justice system or substance use challenges
- $49 a month can help make therapy accessible for someone who couldn't otherwise afford it
- $65 a month can help support a family counseling session
- $96 a month can provide parent education for someone working to create a more stable home environment
- $105 a month can help support therapy over several months for a veteran or someone working through trauma

Each of these represents real care that continues beyond a single visit.

Become a monthly donor and choose a schedule that works for you. Set it up once, and your gift continues automatically, helping ensure services remain available year-round.
